Viewing Student's Responses

The screenshot displays the JFY software interface for a CCSS Grade 8 Course Diagnostic. At the top, a navigation bar includes a back arrow, the text "CCSS Grade 8 - Course Diagnostic", a red-bordered box containing the instruction "Click on a question to see student's response", a "Hide incorrect steps" button, and a progress indicator. Below this is a horizontal row of 18 numbered circles, with circle 1 highlighted in yellow. The main content area shows question 1: "Write a numerical ratio for the number of squares to circles. Give your answer in the form  $a:b$ ." Below the question is a visual representation of 13 blue circles and 8 green squares. At the bottom left, two response options are shown: an incorrect response "13:8" with a red 'X' icon and a correct response "8:13" with a green checkmark icon. A "Practice this problem again" button is located at the bottom center, and a help icon is at the bottom right. The text "Grade: 72%" is visible in the top right corner of the interface.

DURANGO, Colorado (Achieve3000, September 30, 2019). It was a rain-soaked day in Durango, Colorado, yet a young woman named Charlie lingered at a local park. Heading home wasn't an option for the 20-year-old. She was homeless.

Homeless teens like this one often end up living on the street, but Loretta Meushaw is dedicated to finding them shelter.

On that rainy day in 2018, Charlie met a woman who'd become a ray of sunshine in her life. Her name was Loretta Meushaw. She helped Charlie get food and clothes. She also encouraged her to attend college and pursue her dream of working in medicine. Before long, Meushaw became a stable presence in Charlie's otherwise unstable life.

"She's basically been like a mom to me," said Charlie, who grew up in the foster care system from age 7 to 18.

Charlie may not be the only young transient who considers Meushaw to be "like a mom." For two decades, many young people with no place to go have been offered a helping hand by the big-hearted Durango resident.
